

Güten Morgan Bio Sheet

Güten Morgan is a studio artist with a penchant for fusing classic 70's-style rock with 90's-2000's Indie/Alt rock and grunge. Differing from most rock vocalists, Morgan's voice is a rich baritone, and his music blends it with generous use of guitar and percussion. Güten Morgan's first studio CD, Trash Day, was released in 2019, and consists of eight original and 2 cover songs – including an acoustic cover of Led Zeppelin's "Over the Hills and Far Away". Subsequent singles were released in 2021 and 2023.

Morgan Tharp, the primary artist behind Güten Morgan, now hails from Tampa, Florida.

The releases are self-recorded and produced, with varied contributions from a handful of other musicians. Morgan works by day as a long-standing practicing oncology physician, but has always had a love for music and especially guitar. Although his music is unique, he has been greatly influenced by Led Zeppelin and Kings of Leon, as well as all the "classic rock" of the late 1960's and 70's, and several bands of the 1990's. The acoustic cover song "In Your Eyes" (live) by Jeffrey Gaines became the inspiration to compose an acoustic version of "Over the Hills and Far Away"; this led to a recording session for this track, out of which flowed the rest of the Trash Day album.

Morgan is currently working additional Güten Morgan songs as well as other music projects.
